

A New View Film Series

2023
2024

A New View Film Series will journey outside everyday life to explore new world views through the screening of four films and seeks to promote appreciation and foster respect for differences through the lenses of interfaith understanding and appreciation for diversity, social justice, and belonging.

All events take place in

Eidson-Duckwall Recital Hall

7:00-9:00 PM

Free admission

Each screening will be followed by a discussion with the audience.

All events are free and open to the public. No tickets are required. For more information, visit: butler.edu/student-life/faith-vocation/a-new-view.

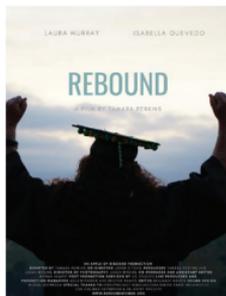

For events on the Butler University campus, patrons may need to park in the Parking Garage. Fees can be found at butler.edu/parking.

For accessibility information or to request disability-related accommodations, please visit butler.edu/event-accommodations.

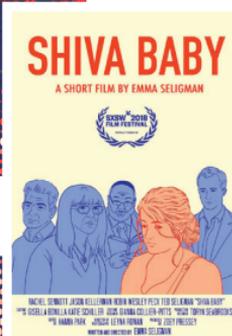

Monk with a Camera September 13, 2023

“Monk with a Camera” is an engrossing documentary about a privileged young American who leaves fashion photography to become a Buddhist monk in India, then returns to photography to provide some crucial help to his monastery while balancing monastic and public life. Roger Ebert

Rebound • November 2, 2023

“Rebound” follows two women from starkly different circumstances as they rebound from incarceration and seek refuge and opportunity in academia. Struggling to recognize their worth, these aspiring scholars find acceptance, sisterhood and hope for a new life. Gooddocs. A post-film discussion will feature local experts involved in a project working with incarcerated women with children.

Shiva Baby • January 31, 2024

“Shiva Baby” explores Jewish and bisexual identity and representation as a young, bisexual Jewish woman attends a shiva (Jewish mourning gathering) with her parents.

The film follows Danielle on her way to meet her family for the somber occasion where she runs headfirst into a slew of questions about her prospects, both professional and personal, from family, friends, and relatives. Roger Ebert

Dalya's Other Country March 6, 2024

Dalya, a Syrian refugee living in America, tries to be a normal teenager. Yet under the shadow of Donald Trump's rise to power, she must contend with daily reminders of her otherness, like being the only girl in school that wears a hijab. Keeping her Muslim father proud and integrating into American teen life with make-up, proms and boys is a hard line to walk. This touching film explores a young life caught between highly politicized identities. IMDB.com

Sign up here to receive reminders about our events.

BUTLER
JORDAN COLLEGE of the ARTS

BUTLER
UNIVERSITY
CENTER for FAITH and VOCATION

The series is co-sponsored by the Center for Faith and Vocation and the Center for Interfaith Cooperation, with partnership from the Jordan College of the Arts.

